1990-1991

Dear Ms or Mr MBA,

We hope you enjoy reading this yearbook as much as we enjoyed putting it together. Going through our collection of photographs and articles of the past year brought back great memories for all of us. Many hours were spent laughing over the bizarre happenings of this year.

We all came to Concordia as strangers, and going through the year's events we found and developed strong bonds of friendship. This yearbook is an important reminder of this friendship.

After all, how can you forget the trials and tribulations of being in the MBA program. Do you remember:

- Initiation pub nite at Victoria Hall, where dancing on speakers became a fad.
- The nightmares of financial accounting.
- The torture of DESC 600 for non-mathematical students.
- Catching your zzzzzzz's in Advertising and International Marketing.
- Trying to grasp the fundamental concepts of Finance I.
- Being totally lost in outer space in Policy I.
- Walking in Day 1 of the program to find Kelly's video camera pointed at you in OB class.
- The eagerly awaited arrival of the computers !
- Barbieri's lightweight reading package for Marketing.
- Slacking off in the Second Year, while consoling the First Years that the agony will be over soon.
- The Fun Fun Fun we had at the MBA Queens games (remember Mats the Swedish hunk)!
- Meeting other Fellow MBAs from across Canada during the MBA Case Competition.
- Learning what the two extra "P's" stand for in Marketing.
- Eating at BIOTRAIN for the 999th time !!!!!!!
- Job searching in the peak of a Recession.
- The anticlimatic feeling of finally finishing your Research Paper without an I.P.

We hope this yearbook brings a smile to your face, now and in the years to come.

Best wishes and good luck in the future.

Love from all of us,

Louise Brunet

CONCORDIA GRADUATE STUDENT ASSOCIATION

As the academic year 1990-91 comes to a close, we the Council would like to once again express our gratitude for your support and participation. The opening of the computer lab, the social and sports activities, and the organized academic events were part of our efforts to improve student life. A special thanks to Mike Cayouette for his help with the computer lab. Thanks are also extended to AJ, Deirdre, Chris and all of the other computer lab monitors.

We were proud to welcome the new representative of the Masters of Science program to the CGSA. This will further strengthen the CGSA's overall position as a graduate student association. Congratulations to Didier Pomerleau for winning the position of President of the Graduate Students Association.

Certain members of the CGSA will continue to be committed to student affairs through the MBA Alumni. We strongly encourage your involvement in future alumni events.

Good bye and good luck in all your endeavours!!

Dear Mom and Dad:

Well I'm finished - send money! Yes finally I'm graduating and/or getting thrown out because my hair is too long. All, okay most, would you believe some, of my friends are also graduating. But the reason I ask you to send money is that only a whopping 19% of the class has found jobs, I mean "careers." Oh those recessionary blues!

Not even our top student, Joe Cristiano, managed to find work. Allan and Leif are going to open a pool hall, because their skill level is so high. This was demonstrated to many at a recent billiards exhibition at Belmont where the "Masters of the Felt" were doing just about everything to keep the ball from staying on the table.

I think Giuseppe will probably open a school for hitmen with an education. He wants to do this because he looks so good wearing his black leather jacket and Ray-Bans indoors.

Jean-Marc has decided to open a lingerie store specializing in, you guessed it, French imports. Christophe will be taking care of the management and policy. I was asked to start up a fashion boutique with the doctors of french-canadian style: Michel Sauvé and Roger Blanchette. I declined, but Steve Schmidt may accept. Sadly I was not invited to join Mike Stevenson's staff at his new clinic - he only hires females so Karen M. and Jennifer-Lynn will (again) be at his side.

Steve Wiencke is planning to start a "Hippies in Hardware" computer business out of his 1974 VW van. AJ (which stands for Anguilla Josephette) will be working for the Department of Defence in Ottawa; Andrew will also be in town milking the cows for the Department of Agriculture.

Madeleine and Diane are going to open up a hairdressing salon/ pharmacy, or something like that, but even more interesting is Denys and Elana who are coordinating a dance festival specializing in French Canadian Hebrew works, talk about a mix...

Anne Marie is hoping to open a bed and breakfast in Vermont just like the Stratford Inn. Guy Cournoyer is starting a hockey school (because of his last name not his talent) with Jonathan M.and Chris V. acting as coaches. "Fast Eddie" will be in charge of PR.

A long distance love club is being formed by Lisa and Sherrie, they'll head up the Australasian region, while Victor will be in charge of the Scandinavian division. Jeff and Brian Seaman will be given the "My wife lives in another city so I can misbehave" division. I think Joanne will be working at Copies Concordia due to her pre-MBA tenure at Xerox.

An MBA-Enginneer corporation is starting with the following slogan to help drum up business: "We charge more because we're smarter." Of course this is the master plan of Tommy "the capitalist" Kennedy and Giuliana "the Goose" Minardi. Duforest and Hanson will also be involved, but as usual just slacking off.

While on the topic of slacking off, Sylvia will be modelling for Judi's new agency. Jacquie has also been asked, but as there are no nudes she claims not to be interested. Treasurer Betty Landau, on the other hand, is very keen on the position. Philip and George are going to be headlining the male section.

Good looks are also going to take Bruce far, he'll be the stunt double for Harrison Ford in Tinsel Town.

A surf-shop is opening in Cote St.Luc with a subsidiary to be located in Burlington, Ont. I predict that Samantha Smithard will be CEO and Ken Cramer will be executive VP, if she lets him.

I'm going to stay in Montréal for the summer writing my memoirs, and DJing at some scary alternative nightclub. I may then move to L.A., but that all depends on my love life...

Missing you both,

-your son with the MBA

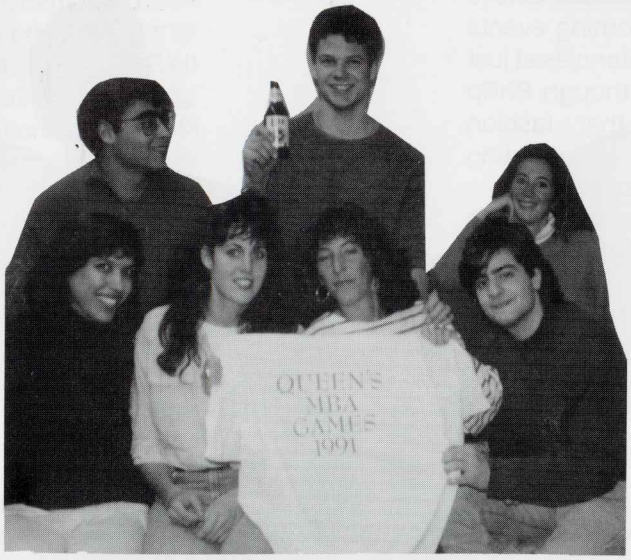
THE QUEEN'S MBA GAMES

After braving the most severe snowstorm of the season, Equipe Concordia finally arrived in lovely downtown Kingston. A quick stop at the opening pub-nite showed what we were all about. Berangere tried to take off her top like she does at all the bars in France. Against their better judgement, Guillaume and Kyle put an end to that and ordered their 7th round of drinks.

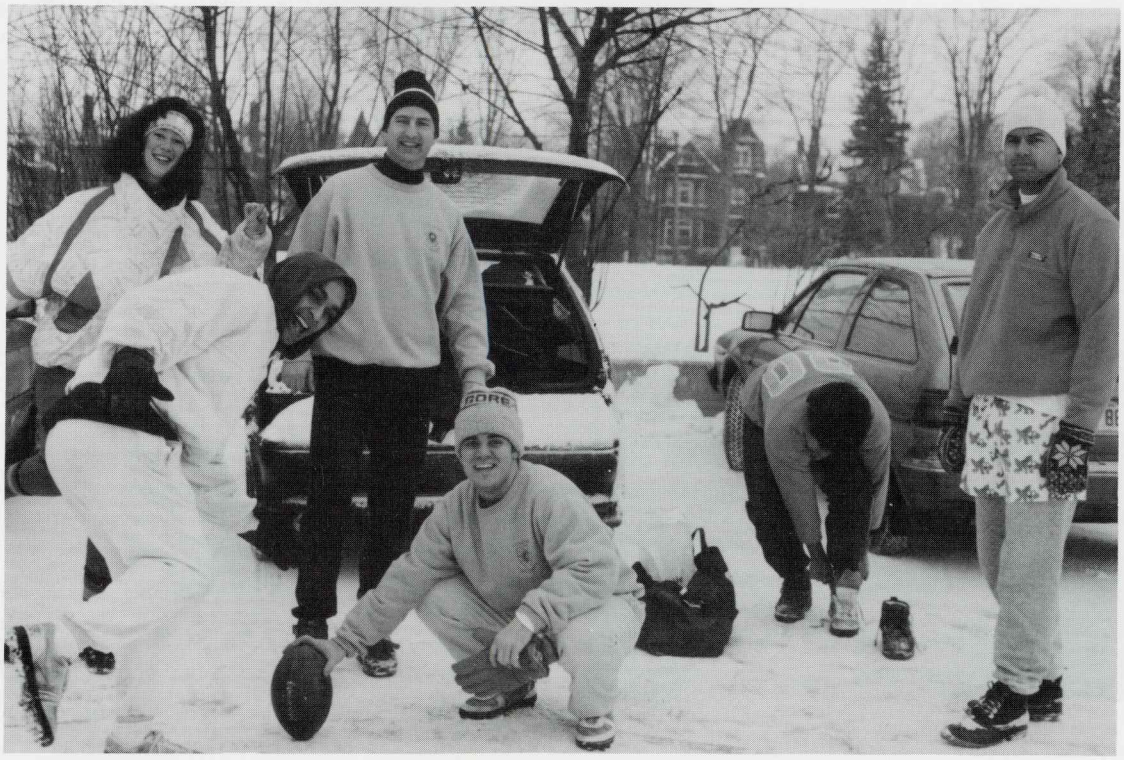


The QUEENS MBA GAMES- WHAT REALLY HAPPENED!

A BriefCase Exclusive

At the opening reception Kyle"what d'ya mean I can't get another four, it's only 1:15 ya' lousy bartender" Harrison partied hard enough for all to be impressed that Concordia was a team to be reckoned with.

A certain member of the team asked me as we left Kingston, "How much does it cost to fly to Stockholm?" Well Ms. Favretto if you book three weeks in advance you can go for $469 on Scandinavian Air Services, but more on that later.



The next morning we rose to "enjoy" a terrible $8.75 breakfast before the games began. The morning events all highlighted our incompetencies at just about everything we did, though Philip Goldsmith did make the fashion statement of the games by sporting knickers to the football games.

In "whizball" we got crushed as "Fast Eddie" was trying to get a grip on all three of the rules. Our injured athletes fared no better as Lorne Severs was too busy tending to other details such as his date for the evening. And Philip's knickers were just not enough as to help the football team past the semi-finals.

After lunch we participated in events which were even less conducive to our style of play, i.e. badly. Resident J. Sherwood took control of the board games competition, but due to her teammates' lack of knowledge,(or at least that was the excuse she gave me), they lost big-time.

The Scavenger hunt team fared better until Pierre decided to take a dip in Lake Ontario in January and froze his you-know-whats. The female members of the team on the other hand took their turn on stage while seducing an entire bar full of Kingston's finest with their rendition of "Voulez-vous couchez avec moi". Sadly no video cameras were rolling so Musique Plus will have to wait.

The final afternoon event was volleyball, and the team, under the guidance of captain Hady "barefoot is cooler" Mizra, actually showed some very slight traces of skill. Alas, the opponent we faced in the semis had even more and we lost. Never mind, we still had the best looking team there.

Yes, Milli Vanilli are still hot and members of our program as Richard "I don't need to stuff my biker shorts" Heft and Doug "my ego is the size of the Olympic stadium" Hylton hit the floor. Man did the crowd eat 'em up!!! Rich was sporting a mop while Doug had his hair in rasta braids courtesy of the staff from "Salon 202" which had french import hairdressers Emmanuelle and Stephanie.

We extinguished the Game's flames (note the rhyme) with an outrageously good version of Milli Vanilli for the lip-sync contest. Rappin' Rich Heft, sporting a spray painted black wig, and Disco Doug Hylton with rasta dreadies, pumped and gyrated like they were auditioning for the Chippendales, women screaming - total pandemonium!!!

Maybe next year's team will fare better than second last, but no way in hell will they be more fun then this roster.

TEAM SPORTS 1991

HOSTILE TAKEOVERS. . .

Broomball team 1990-91

After a gruelling 30 game regular season plagued with injuries, we secured a playoff spot in the final two weeks. But it is these injuries that really need be addressed more carefully. An early season loss of Brian "Well it looks like hockey" Seamen and Pierre "I'll eat 'em for breakfast" Richard to separated shoulders did not auger well. That coupled with Sex-Kitten Clarke's knee blow-out (many are still asking if it was all a ploy for attention), and we looked like the Iraqi's in February.

Alas, one must remember that we had one secret weapon: league MVP, Thomas Duforest, who so ably captained us to victory after victory as the season winded down. Not enough can be said in the way of praise to our little French love-stud, except that he did everything; attended league meetings, refereed when called upon, organized us so efficiently (he only forgot to mention 4 games the whole season, remember he's an engineer) and finally punch opposing players when they were mean - a thanks from all!

Stellar offensive efforts were also provided by "The Subtle Brothers:" Dave Wright and Jeff Vathje; the only players in the league who would apologize to the opposing goalie after scoring.

Defensive stalwarts Diane "the-accident-is-about-to-happen" Favretto, Martine "the-broom-is-too-short-for-me" Spence and Suzan "I'll get his phone number" Denoncourt made goalie Hylton's life a breeze. And breeze we did into the playoffs; only to have last year's champs beat us due to their triple teaming against Tom, and slicking the ice so as to slow down Chris "sideburns and jets" Taylor and Hadi "Turbo Boost" Mizra.

We lost, we were sad. Kyle went to the bar and had a beer or eight. Best of luck to next year's squad.

HOCKEY NEWS...

Another hockey season has come to an end and the Bullet$ have proven that they have the stuff to stay out of the playoffs. Not that the team didn't have quality players, nor was it the fact that there was a lack of enthusiasm, but something was missing. Could it have been the mystique that John Kearny and Ken Smithard generated by disappearing from the team? Maybe, but, a more plausible reason lies in the teams driving force. That's right, the captain of the Bullet$ is ultimately responsible for what happens on the ice. I can honestly say that my stint at leading the Bullet$ to their only victory late last season, while Captain Ronny Velicogna was indisposed left me with the impression that I could take hold of the '91 Bullet$.

The year didn't start out as planned. By the end of the season, the real Bullet$ understood what it meant to be on the team: none more so than Philip Goldsmith and Derek Nicholson who are the tops for zeal and faith in the team. On ice spiritual leadership goes to Paul Alexander and Richard Heft, neither of whom ever gave up or showed signs of losing an unparalleled level of intensity.

There are also many unsung heroes: players like Leif Quraeshi, Andrew Campbell, Victor Nicolau and Jonathan Mosel. It was these men that provided a core of talent to draw upon. Maybe we would have more than one win and one tie if Chris Vogler and Pierre Masella could have made those Thursday night games. But alas I can not pass the blame on to anyone but myself.

As I write the article I reflect upon what the Bullet$ are about, a bunch of MBA students out to have a good time playing hockey against future lower paid employees.

Pubs and Parties!

HALLOWEEN !!!!

Crazy man, just crazy! This year's MBAs partied harder than any in recent memory. The attack was led from all fronts: first years, part-timers and second-years.

The season opener took place in Westmount, just to show the world that we had a little bit of class, and also to show the class of '92 what it was all about. Well no doubt a lot of class was being shown by "Dr. Slick" Ken Smithard as he made the first moves on year long sweetie Samantha C.

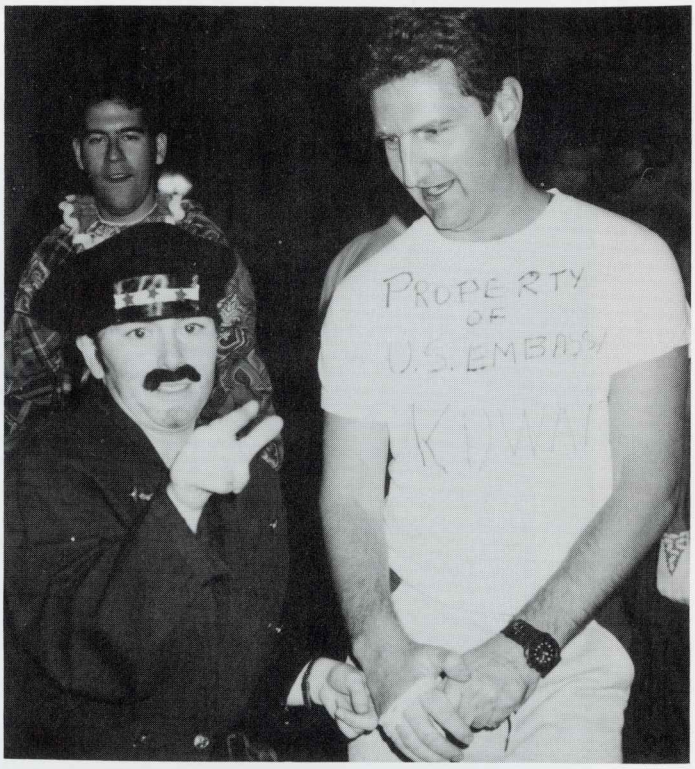
Less class, but more flesh was being shown by our own Disco Doug as he was wearing grey flannel bermuda shorts and nothing else - many of course mistakenly identified him as Pierre Richard due to his expansive upper torso.

The Halloween blowout featured yet another locale, this time across the street from our beloved GM building at Reggie's. Costumes were being worn by many but the body suits being worn by Ronit Bigio and Beth Tuer certainly gave a new meaning to the term "body-hugging". Prizes were given out to various classmates with Jean-Louis winning it all.

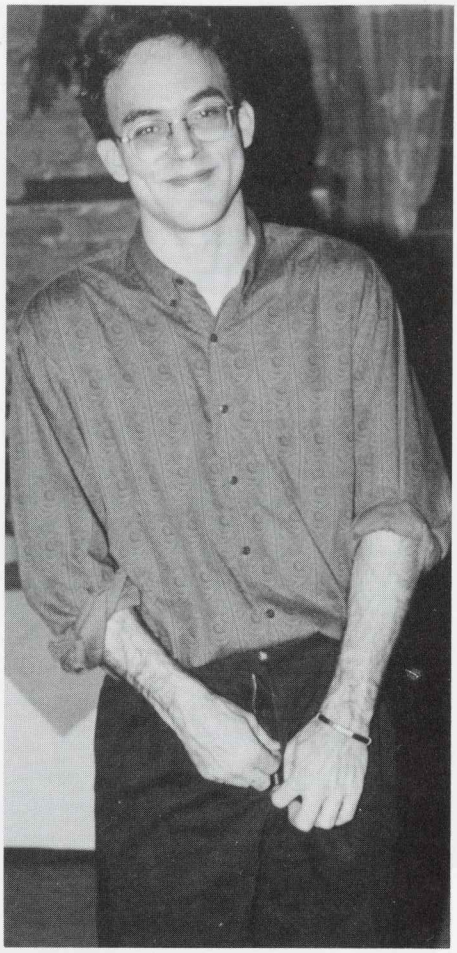
Though honorable mention goes out to Andrew and Richard as the Nerds (they didn't even have to change into their costumes), Luke "I don't even know how to spell Michelline because I'm so wasted" Lukic as the Michelin Man and Leif "there are no pads under my sweatshirt" Quraeshi as one of Hans or Franz. He knew which one he was because he stays in on the weekends as he can never get a date.

TRICK

OR TREAT !!!!



DECENT & INDECENT EXPOSURE at the WINTER EXTRAVAGANZA



Our next "raison d'étre" (which is French for "why bother studying for first semester exams") was the winter extravaganza. This more dressy function, yes we all got to pretend we were employed for an evening, took place at a very nice french restaurant behind the Faubourg. Many friends and guests from out-of-town partook in the festivities, as did many of the dinner guests from the restaurant who thought they had dancing there every night.

The new year started off with a new venue, that being Bal Saint Louis, a groovy little spot on Prince Arthur. This new location also brought about a new twist: why not make even more money and invite the McGill MBA students. This really created some great pubs, with such wonderful people as Jeff Vathje running around like his wife had just moved back to Calgary.

It was also at these pubs that DJ AC/DC, that stands for Andrew Campbell from the District of Cambridge, started to really take over some of the duties behind the "wheels of steel", that's hip DJ lingo for record players. Other guest DJs included Sexy Suzy Paternak and Mixmaster Madeleine "is this a 33 or a 45 ?" Clarke. Fun was had by all, especially when the call to arms was issued by Kyle demanding a round of shots to be quickly administered to any who were still standing.

The year all came to a close with the banquet but you'll have to flip a few pages to get to that one.

A FIRST LOOK

Well, the ice has been broken. The first year students, of which I am one, have begun to speak out... In the Briefcase that is. I suppose this is as good a time as any to make my contribution. I guess I'll start at the beginning... with some of my favourite quotes to date, a top ten list as it were, of things I almost believed, and now know are false.

1. Really, you'll love calculus.
2. Don't worry about the book... concentrate on the class notes.
3. There is no math involved in economics
4. Sure he's a new professor but take him anyway.
5. Party the night before an accounting class? No problem.
6. Homework hasn't killed anyone... yet.
7. Your going back to school? No, that won't effect our relationship.
8. Sure the government loan system has a few bugs but overall its great... Trust me.
9. Getting into the MBA is the hardest part of the program. The rest is easy.

10. It will be a growth experience for you.

Don't get me wrong, I have been enjoying myself and occasionally learning something. It just seems at times that things are going a lot better for everyone else. No matter how hard I try I'll never be a math stud, capable of rising to the occasion when facing a curvy integral. Oh well, I guess we all have our crosses to bear.

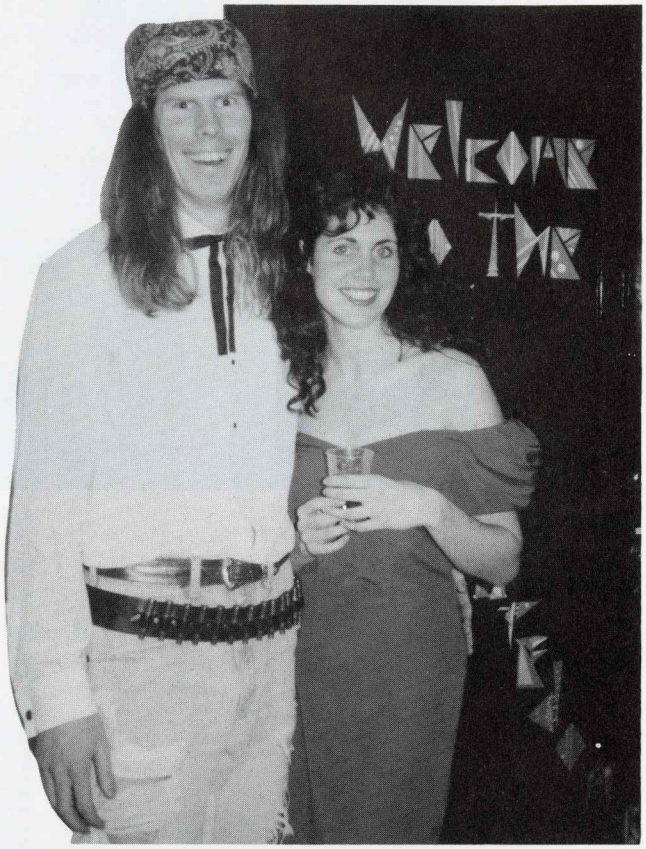
Year End Banquet Ball

or "Did I really pay $30 for this chicken dinner?"

Oh my God what am I going to do with my hair? And how can I possibly manage to change my outfit four times in the evening- what's a fellow to do! The year end banquet ball was a raging success, thanks and congratulations are due to all involved.

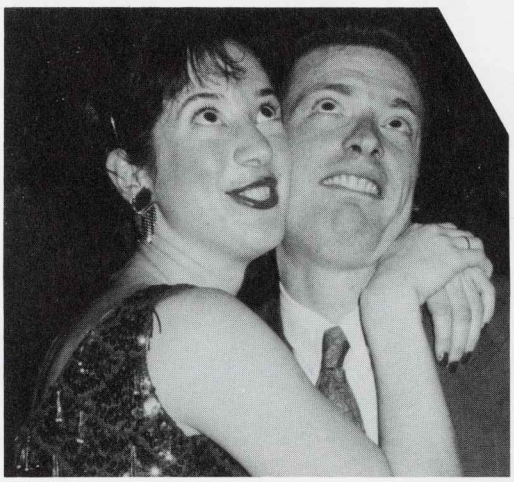
Where to begin, okay how about cocktails at the infamous nightclub "The Pleasuredome" hosted by Sexy Suzy who looked so beautiful in her back-less gown, and Disco Doug who just ran around thinking he was a rock star. From there everyone save Jacquie "I-thought-it-was-at-the-Sheraton" Sherwood proceeded to the Grand Hotel for dinner and dancing. There are, though, some noteworthy highlights to this festive occasion.

Before the dancing started we were blessed with a poetry reading by David Wright, which set off a flurry of poets and/or rappers spewing their sentiments. Then for the first time since the dawning of the new age Bruce "Studio 54" Herscovici was seen lighting the dance floor ablaze with his John Travolta disco moves.



And speaking of ablaze, VP Internal Allan Benchetrit and Sylvia Skipclass seemed to be engaged in a rather heated, if you will, "discussion", on the topic of rug burns - tasteful indeed!

President Berdusco on the other hand was having no trouble interpreting for her Japanese baseball player date. Love is such a universal language- revolting eh?!?



I would now personally like to thank Ayla, Elana and Judi for wearing their respective outfits, and you thought Cindy Crawford looked hot at the Oscars.... Also looking particularly good were case-comp co-organizor Valérie LaTraverse and the consulting bureau's Lillian Liganor.

I close by asking how it is possible for one Briefcase editor to actually take two hours to drop off the other Briefcase editor at home, when no car troubles occurred? . . .

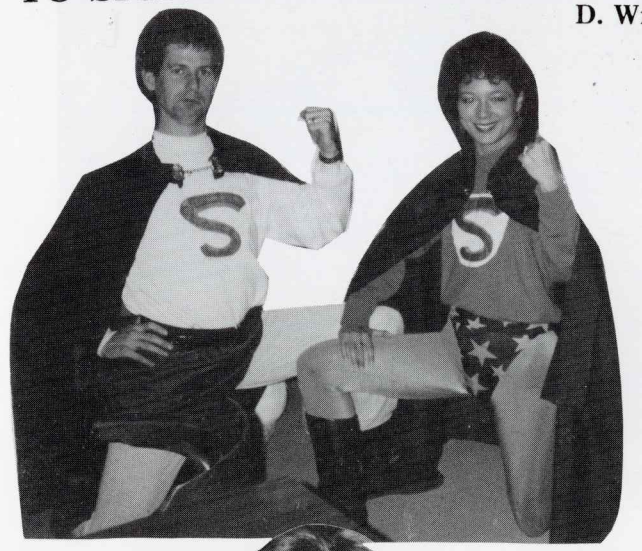
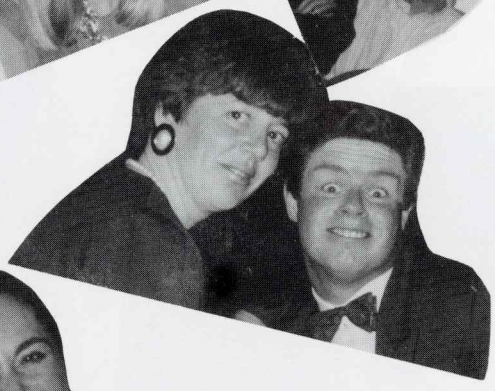
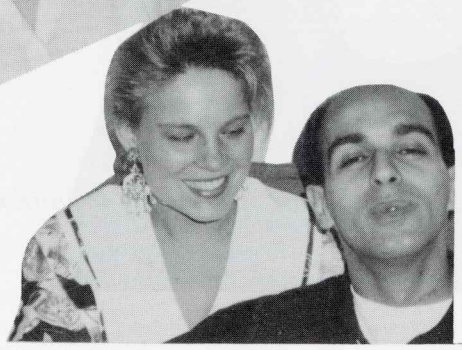
GETTING DOWN!

A TOAST!
TO SIGNIFICANT OTHERS...

D. Wright







I'd like to propose a toast
To the significant others in the crowd.
You've been neglected for sometime,
Something of which we're not too proud.

To significant others,
We raise a glass to you.
You've supported us and encouraged us.
Oh, and cursed us too.

We've spent many late nights
At home and away,
With people you don't know
Or wish would go away.

For those group meetings at home
It can be unnerving at best.
All day and all night,
We work with dedication and zest.

This term we had projects
In Pensions and Portfolio.
If only I had a spare moment,
I could catch Vanna on Arsenio.

But there's no time even for cleaning,
For my workload is just too great.
Besides, I'm falling asleep
From the pizza I just ate.

To significant others
From a potential MBA grad,
You promised: "For better or worse"
But did you think it would get this bad.

Graduation day approaches
And not a moment too soon,
For it can't get much lonelier for you
Except, maybe, on the moon.

Going to bed all alone is not fun,
So they say.
But at least you get to sleep
More than four hours a day.

To the boyfriends and girlfriends
And the spouses here tonight,
We wish to thank you sincerely
Without picking a fight.

To significant others
As I started to say,
You have supported us and encouraged us,
In your own way.

And we thank you for this
And raise a glass to you to say:
From the bottom of our hearts,
Hopefully, we can make it up to you, someday.
